MACDONALD AND MEMBERS OF HIS CABINET TAKE THEIR OFFICES

Transfer of Reins of Government Hurried Up, and Seals of Office Are Delivered by King.

MEETING CALLED FOR THIS AFTERNOON

Discussion of Policies to Be Presented to Parliament Understood to Be Under Discussion.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Labor ministry, headed by J. Ramsay MacDonald as Prime Minister, formally took office at noon today. The members of the retiring Baldwin Government visited Buckingham Palace in the forenoon and shortly afterward Prime Minister MacDonald and his ministry arrived at the palace and received their seals of office.

Premier MacDonald, waiting no time in getting the machinery of his Government to work, called a cabinet meeting for this afternoon at which it was understood the policy to be presented to Parliament when it assembles would be considered. (This action is contrary to the program announced yesterday, which provided for the holding on of the Baldwin ministry until the reassembling of Parliament. The speeding up of affairs will put the work of handling the Engine Drivers' strike on the Labor Government.)

Surprises in Cabinet. The cabinet appointments of Ramsay MacDonald that attracted most attention are those of Viscount Chelmsford as First Lord of the Admiralty and of John Wheatley as Minister of Health. The naming of Lord Chelmsford, a complete surprise—one conservative newspaper calls it "a great shock," for nobody had guessed that he, who has been associated with Labor, and the date of his conversion is quite unknown. The Viscount is prominent as a former Viceroy of India, who introduced there certain administrative reforms which displeased the conservatives at home. He also has been Governor of Queensland and of New South Wales, and has taken a conspicuous part in educational work.

Wheatley's inclusion in the ministry is generally regarded as a sop to the Glasgow extremists, to which he belongs. Born in humble circumstances, Wheatley worked for 22 years in the coal mines. He now is a publisher in Glasgow and is considered by the most intellectual of the Clydeside Socialists. As Minister of Health, he will be responsible for the burning question of rents and housing, concerning which the Glasgow contingent has been much disturbed.

Berger's Message of Congratulations to MacDonald. LONDON, Jan. 23.—Representative Victor Berger of Wisconsin, the only Socialist in Congress, yesterday cabled congratulations to Ramsay MacDonald, Great Britain's new Prime Minister. His message read:

"Congratulations and best wishes from the only Socialist in Congress. Today Americanism and capitalism have come to mean the same thing. The working class of Great Britain is the hope of the white race and of the world. Therefore, down with the selfish Versailles peace and up with the banner of justice and human brotherhood. And since you have the world's conscience in your keeping you need to fear nothing. You cannot lose. Comrades, good luck."

Philippine Thank American. MANILA, Jan. 23.—The Philippine Senate yesterday adopted a resolution thanking Senator King of Utah and Representative Rankin of Mississippi for introducing bills in Congress providing for Philippine independence.

LABOR CABINET, WITH FOUR TITLES IN IT, HAS GOOD RECEPTION BY ALL PARTIES

Even the Hostile Press Concedes an Exceptionally Strong Array of Statesmen Has Been Put in Office.

By JOHN L. BALDWIN. (Copyright, 1924.)

LONDON, Jan. 23.—James Ramsay MacDonald, who was sworn in as Prime Minister yesterday, has a cabinet of statesmen that has been put in office.

The Conservative Premier Baldwin has resigned in the House of Commons and Parliament has adjourned until Feb. 12. On that day it will reassemble to vote confidence in the new Government.

The transfer of the reins of power from the Tories to Labor took place calmly and with the observance of all traditional customs. MacDonald even wore a top hat and frock coat for the call at Buckingham Palace. His companions, Thomas and Clynes, however, showed their spirit in bowlers and short jackets.

Labor's assumption of control aroused no apparent general interest. The evening papers printed the political news under small headlines and featured the railway strike.

The new Government. The personnel of the new Cabinet which the King has already approved includes all the principal officers. It was announced as follows:

Premier and Foreign Secretary, MacDonald. Lord Privy Seal and Deputy Government leader in the House of Commons, John Robert Clynes, president of the National Union of General Workers, parliamentary secretary for the food ministry at the end of the war, and a member of Parliament since 1905.

Lord President of the Council and Government leader in the House of Lords, Baron Parmoor, once a strong Tory, a high authority on church law, who married a Quaker and became a pacifist in the war. He has been prominent lately in the movement to feed Germany and wants modification of the peace treaty in Germany's interest.

Lord Chancellor, Viscount Haldane, who had that office for three years under Premier Asquith. He had at first refused the office under Labor. "Chancellor of the Exchequer, Philip Snowden, one of the intellectual leaders of the party, and one of its best minds. He was formerly chairman of the Independent Labor party and has written and lectured a great deal on economic and financial as well as social questions from Labor's viewpoint.

Home Secretary, Arthur Henderson.

Glasgow contingent has been much disturbed.

Berger's Message of Congratulations to MacDonald.

Philippine Thank American. MANILA, Jan. 23.—The Philippine Senate yesterday adopted a resolution thanking Senator King of Utah and Representative Rankin of Mississippi for introducing bills in Congress providing for Philippine independence.

J. R. CLYNES. New Lord Privy Seal. He introduced in Parliament the "no confidence" motion which overthrew the Baldwin Government.

erson, a former laborer and trade union leader, who headed the party while MacDonald was abroad because of his pacifism. Henderson was a member of the war Cabinet without portfolio. Colonial Secretary, J. H. Thomas, railway union chief, also one of the "honesty-handed" section of the party. He went to work when he was 9 and has long been a leader of the Labor party.

Secretary of War, Stephen Walsh, a laborer M. P. since 1905, who also served as parliamentary secretary for ministries of the war governments.

Secretary of State for India, Sir Sydney Olivier, a new recruit to Labor, who is given the office because of his long colonial experience. He has served in India, Africa, Jamaica, British Honduras and the Leeward Islands.

Air Minister, Brigadier-General Sir Christopher Thompson, who owes his portfolio to his articles attacking French policy and to his brilliant work as intelligence officer in the Balkans during the war.

First Lord of the Admiralty, Viscount Chelmsford, a former Liberal and Viceroy of India, when MacDonald visited there before the war as member of a Commission of Inquiry. The Viscount is part author of the Montagu-Chelmsford report, upon which the present Constitution of India is based.

President of the Board of Trade, Sidney Webb, another warhorse of the intellectual, author of a number of books and articles on labor and economic questions and one of the original Fabians.

Minister of Health, John Wheatley.

Minister of Agriculture, Noel Buxton, founder of a farmers' co-operative organization and an authority on the Balkans.

Secretary for Scotland, William Adamson, the son of a miner and former chairman of the Parliamentary Labor party.

President of the Board of Education, C. P. Trevelyan, who resigned as parliamentary secretary of that board in 1914 as a protest against a policy which he blamed for involving England in the war.

Minister of Labor, Tom Shaw, secretary of the International Congress of Textile Workers, another of the trade union group of the party.

Boatmen's Bank

Organized 1847

The Foundation of Savings Accounts in Missouri

BACK in the pioneer days of St. Louis this Bank was founded as a safe place for savings. It was the first institution of its kind in Missouri.

From that time on it has steadfastly advanced in the esteem of the public, in responsible repute and as a potent factor in the growth of the city.

It is this first Bank in the State to advocate and foster thrift and to promote systematic savings that invites you to open a savings account with it during

Thrift Week

It is timely to note that the Boatmen's Bank successfully emerged from the various financial storms that from time to time during the past 76 years threatened the disruption of the entire banking system of the country and that it occupies its position of prominence among the leading banks by growth of direct patronage and not by the purchase or consolidation of other banking interests.

This in itself is a testimony to the soundness of its principles and policies and the confidence with which it is widely regarded. In addition to this fine reputation, its resources of $25,000,000.00 are a tangible evidence of the safety in entrusting your savings to this institution.

U. S. AND BRITAIN SIGN 'RUM' TREATY AT WASHINGTON

Hughes and Geddes Attach Names to Agreement
That Extends Limit for Ship Search — Senate Must Ratify.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The liquor treaty with Great Britain was signed today at the State Department.

Secretary Hughes, for the United States, and Sir Auckland Geddes, the retiring British Ambassador, affixed their signatures to the agreement which provides for extension of the American right of search beyond the three-mile limit and permits British vessels to bring ships' stores into American ports under seal.

Senate ratification is required
before the new arrangements become effective, but there are indications that, pending that formal action, the two Governments
tacitly will follow a more lenient policy toward each other in dealing with the liquor question.

The treaty is to run for one year, at the end of which period
it can be terminated on three months' notice. One clause provides that if by reason of "judicial decision or legislative action"
the terms of the treaty are modified, the whole agreement is abrogated.

Provision also is made for a joint commission to settle claims for compensation where a British vessel has suffered loss or injury
through "any unreasonable or improper exercise of the rights conferred by the treaty."

Britain and Colonies Give Unanimous Approval.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Departure
from the accepted three-mile limit which has been the basis of British maritime law from time immemorial, Great Britain and her dominions have unanimously agreed to grant the United States
the right to search British-owned ships carrying contraband liquor within one hour's steaming distance of the American shores.

Australia and New Zealand because of the absence of their President were among the last overseas possessions to return their approval of the proposed treaty, which for brevity probably is one of the most remarkable international documents on record.

It consists of less than three score typewritten pages.

The treaty will have to be ratified by the Imperial Parliament and the American Congress before it becomes law.

SELLS OF LOSING $50,556 IN HOLDUP MEXICO IN 1922

Lee Jordan, Jefferson City
Lumberman, Casually Mentions Robbery When Talking of Other Matter.

"BOARD OF TRADE" DEAL PROVED RUSE

$250 Loan Made in St.
Louis to Woman Results
in Her Arrest and Disclosure of Other Loss.

It was while Lee Jordan, wealthy Jefferson City lumberman, was telling St. Louis detectives about a pious woman to whom he had loaned $250 that he casually mentioned that he was the loser of $50,- 556 in Mexico City, Dec. 18, 1922.
He had refrained from making public the Mexico City episode, and alluded to it at this time only because there was a conjectured connection between the two transactions.

His confidences to the detectives were incidental to the arrest of Mrs. Addie De Noy, or Mrs. Addie Schott, 25 years old, no home and no occupation, who obtained the $250 from him.

To Prove Good Faith.

When Jordan was in Mexico City
he met some very agreeable people from New York who insisted upon showing him how he could make some easy money on the "Board of Trade." He speculated and was told that he had won $25,000, but before it could be paid to him he would have to prove good faith by producing that amount to show that if he had lost, he could have paid.

That was easy for a man like Jordan. He wired his Jefferson City banker and the money was wired to him. He showed it and the $25,000 was paid to him. He stepped to him. But of course the gentleman would want to try his luck again with the $50,000. Jordan said no, he was willing to let it go at that. The "Board of Trade" man said, oh, very well,
and bowed him out and Jordan
started to bank.

Robbed a Black Away.

He had gone only a block when he was confronted by three men
with revolvers, who took from him
the $25,000 and $556 which he carried for carfare and tips. Jordan made up his mind right then that he did not like the "Board of Trade" way of doing business. He departed for Laredo, Tex., and did not forget it.

He had almost forgotten it
when about the middle of last October, at the Central Hotel, Jefferson City, he was introduced to Mrs. Addie De Noy, who said she was a business woman with all kinds of money, some of which she wanted to invest in Jefferson City.

She would start by buying the hotel and did Mr. Jordan know of anything else she could buy?
Some friends had shipped her $110,000 which was down at St.
Louis. The charges were $1500
and she didn't have the change.

Would Mr. Jordan be so kind?
Jordan laughed harshly. It brought back the Mexican transaction which he was trying so hard to forget. Mrs. De Noy would have to excuse him. The woman felt hurt. Just to show that she had more confidence in him she gave him the key to the grip containing the money. Jordan did not know what that key could let him into, so he never used it.

Another Meeting in St. Louis.

Some time later the woman telephoned him to meet her at the St. Francis Hotel, St. Louis, to tell her some of his Jefferson City successes. He met her and she said she had most of the money, but a wife of $150,000 was held a fine
rooming office and she needed $250
to get it out. After the beautiful residence she had showed in him giving him the key, he could not refuse. He handed it over.

Before she could get the money
she would have to go to the Postoffice for a letter. They went to the Postoffice, but no letter was there. Well, she would have to try to get the money without the letter. Would Mr. Jordan please call a taxi? He called it and she climbed in. Oh, no, he couldn't do it alone. She would meet him at the American Hotel. She drove away and Jordan did not see her again.

Arrested in Lawyer's Office.

Lawyer Sunday the woman called at the office of Attorney William
A. Allen in the Tower Building, 401 Olive street, who is Jordan's counsel. She felt that she ought to meet her San Antonio property to Mr. Jordan and wanted Allen to go with her to San Antonio to fight away and help her attend to it.

He told her to return Sunday afternoon. He communicated with Jordan. When she appeared detectives were there and they arrested her. It was then that Jordan, who was present, mentioned
the little matter of the $50,556.

Chief of Police Bruce of Jefferson City took the woman away last night. He said she was wanted in the town for bond jumping and forgery.

When Jordan was asked about it at Jefferson City today he declared that he had given the woman
the money, and as to the Mexico City matter, he was in Allen's of-

One does not laugh at him, this Monsieur Emile Coue, however amused one may be at his teach-

among the half dozen who waited for a certain train from Louisville at Union Station this morning, but that was before the train arrived.
M. Coue came down the steps of a Pullman with head down in the manner of a man who has all he can do. It was immediately perceptible that M. Coue's legs were short and his overcoat long, and that the canvas roll-bag he carried got in the way. When M. Coue descends steps, onlookers at once feel apprehension.

Instead of going firmly on the courtesyway, M. Coue raised his head with a jerk. No jostling hundreds set up cries of "hurrah for Monsieur Coue." They used to, once, a long time back—let's see, wasn't there a popular phrase "Day by day in every way I'm getting better and better?" Must have been almost a year ago when everyone was saying that.

Instead of three newspaper reporters looked at M. Coue's brownish gray goatee, his mustache, his two bright little brown eyes and the black derby hat which rested at an angle on his head.

"That must be he," they said to one another, not quite certain.

"Monsieur Coue—yes?" one ventured.

The black derby bobbed violently.

"Yes, yes, yes," said the little man, holding stoutly by his bag.
He spoke jerkily, that the eyes
hardly had a chance to come out.

Smiles Gently at Reporters.

The reporters looked at M. Coue and M. Coue smiled gently at the reporters. He was a man of readjustment for an interview, at least. Here was M. Coue in St.
Louis, when for months and months his passport had been an almost rotten and it seemed as if if M. Coue had come back from the grave. It didn't seem quite fair to M. Coue, the welcome he received.

Photographers rushed up at that moment and aimed their cameras at the visitor. His manager and a woman disciple who have trailed on the same train
day by day in the minds of average Americans, advertising men, newspaper humorists and such like.

M. Coue shrugged.

"Yes, American make joke. Not all of you. Some who attend my lectures are serious."

He drank a cup of coffee and talked of his institute in New York
and the one at Nancy, France.
What if from topic of conversation and butt of American "wise cracks" he had become a lecturer?
It made no difference to M. Coue.
"People change," he said, "and a change of his shoulders. But my work goes on. They are beginning to see."

for his promise to "deliver" Anderson, were the Rockefeller, Talmer and Henry J. Kaltenbach,
an official of the Fleischmann Brewing interests and of the National Brewers' Association; a number of New York newspaper men, including Jacob Ruppert, a brewer and owner of the New York Yankees, and Ramsey H. Gillett, chief counsel for the New York division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

It was to the latter, Whitman charged, that Phillips, who said he was a fund solicitor for the Young Men's Christian Association, offered to "deliver" Anderson for $25,000.

"Did you get, in addition to abandoning your wife and six children, attempt to sell out your country?" the former Governor
asked.

Phillips stammered, hesitated,
then replied in the negative.

Pressed by the attorney, he admitted having had business relations with some of the men later identified as having been concerned in the sale of munition secrets, but pleaded that he knew nothing of their activities.

Phillips told, under questioning of Pecora, of his employment by Anderson as a fund solicitor in May, 1917.

"I told Anderson I would work
on a per cent commission basis," Phillips testified, "and he said
he would have me sign a contract giving me a salary of $3 per cent of the first $25,000 I collected, with 10 per cent of every additional sum. Anderson told me he wanted to enter into this agreement to fool the Rockefeller, Talmer and Henry J. Kaltenbach, who had been told any League collector would be on a salary basis and not a commission arrangement."

"Later Anderson said to me: 'I get $10,000 a year, and I won't let anybody in this organization get any more than I do; when your commissions come to more than that amount, I will let you have the money. I am doing this because I had to in order to hold my job.'"

Phillips then related that the first commission split occurred approximately $1500. In 1920, however, his commissions totaled $18,- 500, he said. Without his knowledge, he explained, Anderson had the (Anderson's) share of the com-

missional paid to him in checks drawn to himself by the League's assistant treasurer against Phillips'
salary account.

Pecora, in outlining the State's case yesterday, said that alleged forgery was made in the league
books at the direction of Anderson and signed by his own hand. The charge concerns the transfer of an entry of $4400 from Phillips' commission account to his expense account. The change was made when, after he had met Anderson's demand and paid him the money, he objected to having to pay income tax on it.

"We claim," said Pecora, "that the entry was false, we charge it was fraudulent and made with intention to defraud. The entry made it possible that the United States Government and the State of New York were defrauded of proper income tax."

ONLY $300 LEFT
OF $3000 BALANCE
FROM FIGHT SHOW

ONLY $300 LEFT OF $3000 BALANCE FROM FIGHT SHOW

Matt Sofka, Secretary for Coliseum Entertainments, Says Creditors Have Been After Him.

"Where is this fellow Mullen?"
"Yes, what became of Mullen?"
"Where's the $3000 left from Friday night's show?"

These and many other questions
were put, yesterday, to Matt Sofka,
by members of the City Boxing Commission in its investigation of the fiasco in which a boxing program at the Coliseum last Friday night resulted. Sofka was financial secretary of the Angelica Physical Culture Club, which gave Friday's show and three others this winter. James C. Mullen was that club's treasurer and head of the club in these shows and is the man whose whereabouts interested the commission.

When the meeting opened the commissioners thought they were going to discuss whether to give the supposed $3000 balance to charity or attempt to refund it to the spectators. Sofka quickly discussed them with the information that only about $300 was left.

The question of where the money
went is dividing attention of sporting circles with the growing fear that these boxing "exhibitions"
may be stopped altogether, since the grand jury will consider tomorrow the charge that Champion Jack Dempsey violated a State law against prize fighting by his appearance at a show arranged by Mullen, Dec. 11.

Says Creditors Pressed Him.

The commissioners had thought they had a white elephant on their hands until Sofka broke the news.
"What's an elephant?" asked Commissioner Frank Slater, who is a Republican City Committeeman.

"Well, where did it go?" Sofka said creditors were pressing him
with bills from the previous shows, especially the Dempsey affair, thus creating a drain on the treasury
after the surplus from Friday's show developed.

"There was Uncle Sam," the witness said. "Mullen gave me his check for $1400 due on the Federal admissions tax, but just before I went to pay the Collector, Mullen sent me word 'not to cash that check just yet; I didn't want to get Uncle Sam's boys after me and they were pestering me for the money, so I paid with my own personal check.'"

Then there was a bill of $411
from Hotel Jefferson for entertaining Dempsey and providing an elaborate banquet in his honor, which some of the guests were Major Kiel, two Circuit Judges and other local luminaries. Sofka paid that Saturday, he admitted. He also paid for the cost of holding the commission for failure to hold
two closing bouts at Friday's show, though the fighters should have paid it themselves; however, he said, Mullen had told of holding the fighters' forfeit money, so he felt he ought to make good. Sofka also paid court costs in an injunction suit against the police, who wanted to stop the shows.

Pecora, who is an Alderman, suggested summoning Mullen from Chicago, where he is thought to be, for an explanation of the fiasco. He agreed to take a summons to Mullen, said he thought Mullen might arrange to give another show
at which holders of stubs of Friday tickets could get their money back. Sofka said Mullen had fixed his own financial worth at $200,000
and had showed him a fine racetrack in Aurora, Ill., which he said
he owned.

It was brought out that the expense Friday night were to have been $11,500, but that they were reduced to $4000 by failure of the four chief boxers to perform. Gate receipts were about $7000.

Bid on Bridge Less Than Estimate.

The bid of Harry A. Hencke, contractor, 1504 St. Louis avenue, amounting to $104,756.45, was the lowest among 11 proposals opened by the Board of Public Service yesterday for the construction of a concrete and steel viaduct over the River Des Peres at Gravois avenue with bond issue money. The bridge will be a five-span structure, 230 long and 80 feet wide.
It is expected the contract will be let to Hencke next Tuesday, as his bid is lower than the estimate of $105,587.60 made by city engineers.

CREASY FOUND NOT GUILTY OF MURDER OF EDITH LAVOY

Kentuckian, Who Spent
Nine Months in Death House, Acquitted on Second Trial at Mineola, L. I.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MINEOLA, L. I., Jan. 23.—William M. Creasy, Kentuckian, was found not guilty early today of the murder of Miss Edith Lavo, school teacher, in June, 1922. The jury found Creasy after deliberating
nine hours.

It was Creasy's second trial.
Previously he was sentenced to death and spent nine months in the death house at Sing Sing prison.
He gained a new trial on appeal,
however.

About 200 persons remained in the courtroom during the long vigil from 7:30 o'clock last night,
while the jury deliberated.

Creasy, according to the evidence, was a married man, his wife living in Kentucky. He joined a matrimonial club and through its literature began writing to Miss Lavo, also a member. They exchanged more than 100 letters,
when Creasy, who had filed suit
for divorce, came to Long Island.
His divorce plea was denied.

Regardless of this, Creasy admitted he became engaged to Miss Lavo and kept company with her. Then, he testified, he met another young woman and fell in love with her. Creasy said he then informed Miss Lavo that he was married and told her of his cooling love.

Miss Lavo killed herself, he said, with a revolver belonging to him. Her death occurred as she and Creasy sat on a sofa in her room.

The State contended it was Miss
Lavo who had refused to marry Creasy and that he killed her in a jealous rage. Creasy re-enacted the death scene and this, it was learned from the jurors, played a great part in his acquittal.

MEXICAN REBELS TO LIFT BLOCKADE AT TAMPICO

American Cruiser Will Be Withdrawn if Decision Marks Permanent Change of Revolutionist Policy.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Mexican revolutionary leaders have advised Consul Wood at Vera Cruz of their decision "to raise the blockade of Tampico."

Consul Wood reported the announcement to the State Department today, but did not say definitely whether the decision was to raise the blockade permanently or whether it was of a temporary nature, as previously reported. He was asked for further information.

If Consul Wood's reply shows that the De la Huerta leaders have abandoned the American cruiser Richmond, now standing off Tampico to protect American commerce.

Zone of Naval Warfare.
It was reported through private advice that American protests against the blockade would be observed, but that a zone of naval warfare would be declared in effect of Tampico, and ships would be notified that if they traversed the line of fire they would take their chances.

May Bombard Batteries.
Rebel boats will remain at Tampico, and commerce will be warned that they at any moment may open fire on the batteries set up by the Obregon forces at the mouth of the Panuco River and along its banks. De la Huerta leaders at Vera Cruz profess to see a precedent for such a course in the "Rio Incident" of 1894. A revolt by the Brazilian navy at that time was followed by an attempt to blockade that port, but Admiral Benham, in command of United States naval forces there, protested.

An arrangement then was worked out by which ships were warned that they were at liberty to enter the port, but must stand the consequences to themselves should a bombardment be in progress at the time.

The Richmond was ordered to Tampico after Secretary Hughes had warned the revolutionary leaders against any interference with American shipping.

It is the impression of State Department officials that the decision to raise the blockade is intended to be permanent. As long as there is any doubt, however, the Richmond will be kept where she is.

There is at present no intention of changing the orders of the cruiser Omaha and six destroyers which are proceeding from Panama to Vera Cruz and are due to arrive there today.

Bus Passenger Struck by Wire.
John P. Kersting, who has an office in the Victoria Building, was riding downtown on top of a bus yesterday morning. An electric wire struck him in the face at a point 75 feet east of Grand boulevard on Washington boulevard, wrenching his neck and inflicting bruises on the face. He was nearly jerked from his seat. The wire was suspended between the Third Baptist Church and an electrically illuminated Thrift week advertisement erected in the triangular park between Washington boulevard and the cut-off at Grand boulevard. The wire has since been raised.

Are You a Slave to Your Stomach?

Heartburn, gas, sour stomach relieved quickly by Haley's Magnesia-Oil.

If your stomach is easily upset; if you suffer with indigestion, headaches, heartburn, dizzy spells, hiccoughs, you can depend on it—Acidosis (too much acid in the stomach) is to blame. Thousands have found quick, pleasant relief from all these ills by taking Haley's Magnesia-Oil, the new scientific combination of pure mineral oil and milk of magnesia.

Get a bottle of Haley's at your druggist's today and keep it handy on the bathroom shelf. At the first sign of indigestion or constipation take a good swallow of Magnesia-Oil and see how soon you are all fixed up.

The fine quality milk of magnesia contained in Haley's M-O neutralizes stomach acids and the pure mineral oil lubricates the intestines, enabling the body to cast off the waste poisons that always bring sickness in their wake. Haley's is absolutely harmless. You can give it to the children without the slightest fear. It is splendid for old folks, too, because it corrects constipation without gripping or forming a habit.

All druggists sell Haley's; trial size 35c, economical family size $1. Doctors and nurses recommend it. The Haley M-O Company, Indianapolis, Ind.

Make a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really Better Than Ready-Made Cough Syrup, and Saves About $2. Easily and Quickly Prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for Bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. ACCURATE productive capacity largely depends upon good vision, which, in turn, depends upon proper lighting.

Glaring or misplaced lights hurt the eyes. Your working light should be correct in quality as well as intensity—a treat rather than a threat to the eyes.

Eyes behave better and last longer when working with a light that suits them. Daylight is best because Nature made it right for eyes. This is why every Emralite has a special screen which changes ordinary electric light into soft, eye-saving daylight. Better light means better eyes, also better work. When you Emralite your office, you have the best eye insurance, promote the efficiency and comfort of your staff, reduce maintenance cost by standardizing equipment, and enjoy the satisfaction that invariably follows any investment of merit. Emralite is also ideal for home use.

Genuine Emralites are branded and have the Daylite Screen. Look for trade mark. It is your guarantee of satisfaction. Sold by office supply and stationery dealers. PRESIDENT ASKS FOR FARM RELIEF IN NORTHWEST

Special Message Outlines Five Steps, Some to Be Taken by Government, Others by Individuals.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Five steps for the relief of the agricultural situation in the Northwest, some to be taken by Congress, some by the executive branch of the Government and some by private interests, were outlined by President Coolidge today in a special message to Congress.

The steps include: The refunding of the pressing past due indebtedness of the farmer in the territories most seriously affected.

Financial assistance through a Federal agency to enable wheat farmers to make the change from a single-crop system to diversified farming.

The restoration, wherever it would be helpful, of the impaired capital of banking institutions in the distressed sections.

The extension of the time during which the War Finance Corporation can make loans.

President Coolidge told Congress that these are measures, many of which without undue alarm or agitation, but nevertheless, promptly and effectively, we can bring to bear on a serious though happily, a localized emergency, every resource of the Federal Government, and all the assistance which the business and farming community can render.

Situation Becoming Acute.
The economic situation in certain wheat growing sections of the Northwest, the President said, "is reaching the acute stage that requires organized co-operation on the part of the Federal Government and the local institutions of that territory for its solution."

Calling attention to the mention he made of this situation in his message to Congress in December, he continued:

"Great numbers of individual farmers are so involved in debt both on mortgages and to merchants and banks, that they are unable to preserve the equity of their property. They are unable to undertake the diversification of farming that is fundamentally necessary for sound agricultural reconstruction of the area. They are unable to meet their obligations and there has been involved the entire mercantile and banking fabric of these regions."

"Not only have there been large numbers of foreclosures on actual farms, but there are great numbers of farmers who are continuing in possession on sufferance from their creditors."

"There have been large and increasing bank failures. Bills have been introduced providing for the lending by the Federal Government of money directly to the farmers for purposes of assisting them in conversion of their farms on the basis of diversified farming. I am heartily in favor of these bills, but they do not and will not compass the entire problem."

Many Farmers in Jeopardy.
"Many of the farmers are, however, in such jeopardy from their creditors that even with this assistance there is no assurance that they would have a sufficient period in which to work out the necessary conversion of their methods and it would be useless to give to this group such governmental assistance if it is to be only for purposes of immediate seizure by the creditors."

"Such legislation, therefore, will be of little avail unless arrangements have been effected between the farmer and his creditors by the funding of past due indebtedness and interest or by similar means, so that the loans will insure to the benefit of the farmer himself, instead of merely to the benefit of his creditors. If such arrangements can be made the farmer can be given the opportunity to work his way out of the present difficulties. If they are not made, it is difficult to see how he can benefit from the plan."

"In addition to legislation of this character, coupled with the arrangements which I have mentioned looking to the refunding of past due indebtedness, it is necessary to consider whether any steps can be taken to bring financial help to certain limited areas of the Northwest, in which embarrassments and failures among the country banks have added to the hardships of the farmers. The War Finance Corporation is still functioning, but its

BAD PAPER, NOT
"VICIOUS RUMOR," WRECKED BANKLoss in Failure of Holland
Co. at Springfield, Mo., Is Announced at Approximately $400,000.By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 23.— Plans for organization of a new bank, to replace the Holland Banking Co., of this city, which closed
Jan. 15, with a loss announced yesterday to be approximately $400,000,
due to bad paper, were formulated yesterday by local business interests with State Finance Commissioner Milspaugh.The $200,000 capital stock and approximately $181,000 surplus and undivided profits of the Holland company will be wiped out by the losses it is indicated. It is proposed to form the new bank
with a capital stock of $200,000 and a surplus of probably $100,000.The Holland Bank, which had deposits of $2,466,123.25 and total resources of $6,511,023.82, Dec. 31, last, when its last statement of condition was made to the State Finance Department, was the largest in the city since the closing, were on deposit in the Holland Banking Co.
at the time that institution was closed by the directors.Losses of the American Savings Bank totaled $150,000, it was learned yesterday, due to doubtful paper. This loss is covered through the raising of that sum by the reorganizers to take the bad paper
out of the bank, it is said, thus leaving the $50,000 capital stock intact.The losses of the Holland Banking Co. were due to bad loans and apparently there is no evidence of any irregularities or discrepancies in its accounts, it was learned officially.Some of the bad lines of credit were said to have been carried forward from a past merger, and not charged off. However, the bank is said to have made "reductions in recent months in the slow paper."Officials Blamed a "Run."Following the closing of the bank by the directors, Jan. 15, E.
L. Sanford, president, and E. N.
Ferguson, chairman of the board,
issued a statement that the bank
had suffered a "run" in the preceding nine days, due, it was said,
to circulation of rumors that the bank was not in sound condition.Milspaugh at that time announced that it appeared that the bank was the victim of a vicious and irresponsible rumor.Spread of these rumors, declared false, resulted in many individual depositors, and country banks with funds in the Holland bank to become alarmed and many depositors withdrew their accounts, the bank
officials said. The board of directors then decided it was advisable to close the bank and place it in the hands of the Finance Commissioner, it was said.Finance Department officials declined to comment on whether the
"run" was the most pressing factor in the plight of the bank.Information concerning alleged circulation of rumors concerning the bank was placed before the Greene County grand jury yesterday.Interests involved in the organization of a new bank are headed by J. J. Landers, Springfield capitalist, who has large business and lumber holdings in Missouri and Arkansas. He formerly was one of the controlling stockholders in the Bank of Commerce of Springfield, which merged with the Holland Banking Co. in February 1921, but held no stock in the Holland Co.Negotiations reached a favorable stage yesterday, and it is hoped to open the bank within a week or 10 days, Commissioner Milspaugh said. It was stated a major portion of the funds of the depositors probably would be made available for their use at the opening. The plan of organization will be similar to that followed in the case of the Chippewa Bank of St.

CHILD FATALLY HURT
BY SKIDDING TRUCK
Marie D'Angelo, 10, Was On Way Home From School
When Struck by Machine.

Marie D'Angelo, 10-year-old daughter of James D'Angelo, 1416 Hogan street, died at city hospital last night of internal injuries suffered at 4 p. m. yesterday when struck by an automobile truck on Case avenue between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets. George Walter, 6166 Wilson avenue, the driver, said he was driving slowly, but that ice on the pavement caused the truck to skid when he applied the brakes as the girl, on her way home from school, ran in front of the machine. This was the sixteenth automobile fatality here since Jan. 1, as compared with 10 for the same period last year. The boy found injured in the street, Chester Prince Jr., 18 years old, 7015 Dale avenue, was found unconscious in the street at McCausland and Dale avenues at 7:30 o'clock last night by the driver of a passing automobile. Bits of broken glass nearby indicated, police said, that the boy had been struck by an automobile which failed to stop. No witnesses to an accident there have been found by police. The boy suffered skull fracture and is in a serious condition at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium. He has been unable to make a statement.

Three Men and Woman Injured in Auto Collision
James E. Gram, 36, a salesman, 4828 A. Shaw avenue, suffered lacerations of the head, and Alfred Parker, 44, of the Terminal Hotel, suffered injury to his back, right hip and right ankle when both were thrown from an automobile in front of 4279 Washington boulevard by collision of their machine with another.

Liquidation of the remainder of the paper will be started by the Finance Commissioner, the new bank to purchase additional paper found to be good banking loans, from time to time. An advance of a major portion of the funds of depositors probably will be made available at the reopening, it is said, and other payments will be made as collections are made in the liquidation. Small banks, which were correspondents of the Holland Bank, had on deposit there about $1,300,000. Members of the Springfield Clearing House Association have been supplying cash needed by these banks since the Holland bank closed to prevent a possible cash stringency in the operation of any of the smaller banks.

COMPROMISE TAX BILL SUGGESTED BY REPUBLICANS

Majority of Ways and Means Committee Make Offer to Democrats to Frame Nonpartisan Act.

GARNER DOES NOT COMMIT COLLEAGUES

Development Comes in Spite of Indication That Surtax Above 25 Per Cent Would Bring Veto.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee offered today to compromise with the Democrats on the Mellon tax bill and to frame a nonpartisan measure.

Representative Garner, Texas, ranking Democrat on the committee, to whom the offer was made by Chairman Green, did not definitely commit minority members to a compromise.

The negotiations preceded the first consideration by the Committee of the Mellon bill, which in the opinion of the Democratic leaders eliminated any possibility of adoption of the rate proposed by Secretary Mellon, which President Coolidge has insisted must be kept intact.

Green indicated, despite no actual acceptance of the offer by Garner, that the Republicans would go ahead in committee with a view to working out a plan acceptable to the House without an extended party fight on the floor.

Tax revision was discussed at yesterday's Cabinet meeting and afterward it was made plain that the President stood squarely behind the Mellon plan and its fundamental principles and would agree only to amendments designed to perfect it.

There were intimations that Mr. Coolidge would regard any surtax rate above 25 per cent as urged by Secretary Mellon, as a change in the fundamental principles of the Mellon bill and would insist for a veto of the tax measure.

Majority Frames Program. Notwithstanding, Representative Longworth of Ohio, Republican floor leader, continued to insist with party leaders relative to compromise surtax rates as between the Democrats and Mellon proposals. Longworth reiterated that his interest in a new tax bill was the framing of a measure which could pass the House. Adoption of the Mellon suggestion for a reduction in the maximum surtax rate from 50 to 25 per cent, he said, would prevent such action. What course will be taken relative to the normal income tax rates has not been indicated.

Representative Garner of Texas, author of the proposed Democratic substitute for the Mellon plan, took exception to the separate meeting of Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee.

BAR PLANS REEVENEMENT ON SUCCESSOR FOR DAVIS

Three Names to Be Recommended to Gov. Hyde From Which Selection Will Be Made.

A referendum vote to select names of three Republican lawyers recommended as successors to the late Judge Charles B. Davis, who will resign when the Senate confirms his nomination to be Federal judge here, will be conducted by members of the St. Louis Bar Association, N. L. Sturdevant, president, said today.

As told in late editions yesterday, Gov. Hyde, who will name Judge Davis' successor, requested the Bar Association to submit three names, one of which will be selected.

Brief consideration was given the matter yesterday by the Bar Association Executive Committee and Sturdevant is now working out plans for nominations and voting will be announced tomorrow or Friday, he said.

The appointment will be until the general election next November. The Republican City Committee is not expected to suggest names to the Governor because of his consistent failure to heed its recommendations. The committee today adopted a resolution commending strong enough to make an impression in a time when the nominating convention system prevailed and tickets were made up to represent different factions and sections rather than being named by the majority throughout, as in the case of the direct primary.

Began Anti-Boss Campaign. Essen's anti-boss campaign had its first success when he was placed on the county Republican ticket, in 1924, for Recorder of Deeds. He was elected in that year and again in 1928, and he worked for political influence while other office holders were content

The Story of a "Boss"

How Fred Essen, Just Indicted for Election Crimes, Gained and Held Political Control of St. Louis County

By CARLOS F. HURD

In a ring there is usually some one person who holds the strings in his hands and do the others. He has worked himself up to power from small beginnings, gradually extending the range of his influence over the mass of workers, and knitting close bonds with influential men outside as well as inside politics, perhaps with financiers whom he can oblige and who can furnish him with funds. At length his superior skill, courage and force of will make him dominant. The public is such a general. He dispenses places, rewards the loyal, punishes the mutinous, conceals his aims, negotiates treaties. He generally avoids publicity, preferring the substance to the pomp of power, and like all the men dangerous because he sits, like a spider, hidden in the midst of his web. He is a Boss.

These words a third of a century ago, was not the only foreign visitor who has found an American political boss an interesting figure. Such visitors, and some native observers, have studied the boss as the scientist isolates his cells and dissects them. The public's reaction is sometimes one of fatalism, showing the belief that if one boss is overthrown, another will arise. Sometimes the public is mislead to manifest a mean at least, the temporary downfall of bossism. But always there is interest in the person and the doings of the boss, and in proceedings which promise to reveal even a few details of his system of operation.

So when, recently, the St. Louis County grand jury hung out a particularly big wash on the line, the general interest was less in the mere number of those indicted—though the number was 75—than the fact that one of the 75 was Fred Essen, Republican boss of the county.

County in Pre-Motor Days.

Cities are usually the citadels of bossism. But one might imagine a case in which a county, though having no city, might afford power and wide influence to a boss. Such a county would lie adjacent to a city, and would be a joining and partly surrounding a city, and would have unincorporated suburban areas, and rural population which would object to large expenditures for thoroughly polished and city police, and other lawless establishments which the city had driven out, and which would seek protection from further harassment. It would also have corporate interests and revenues comparable to those of the city. And it would have one easily dominant political party. This description fits the St. Louis County, which Essen has been known as boss for more than 20 years.

In the pre-motor days of the '80s, St. Louis County was largely unexplored territory to city politicians, a few miles from the city limits, outside of the suburban communities of Webster Groves, Kirkwood, Ferguson and Maplewood. It was a rural region, not unlike parts of Central and Northern Missouri. The suburban population cared little about the county's politics, and the rural and town population was German and Republican. Traction and public utility possibilities were being realized only gradually. The roads were mostly bad, but the brewery saloons and the heavy truck made their way over them, and politics centered in the roadhouse.

Autemereit Ruled There.

George Autemereit, Clayton Innkeeper, had the chief say in county politics, and was sometimes called the boss of the county. Frank Rauchenstein, who ran the Watchman, a weekly newspaper, also exercised influence in the rather sluggish course of the county's public affairs.

In those days, Fred Essen came in from Meramec Township, near the western end of the county, and demanded recognition in politics. The older men of the Autemereit and Rauchenstein followings did not see much in this young fellow just off the farm, who had had only a common school education. Essen soon found that if he wanted to get into politics he would have to fight his way in.

So he and a few other young fellows, one of them his brother-in-law, Ed Hencken, started an anti-boss campaign. They rallied the men of their own age against the older stevedores, and they were successful. They made an impression in a time when the nominating convention system prevailed and tickets were made up to represent different factions and sections rather than being named by the majority throughout, as in the case of the direct primary.

Began Anti-Boss Campaign. Essen's anti-boss campaign had its first success when he was placed on the county Republican ticket, in 1924, for Recorder of Deeds. He was elected in that year and again in 1928, and he worked for political influence while other office holders were content to perform the routine of their official tasks.

He started a paper, the Advocate, which cut into the circulation of Rauchenstein's Watchman. He tried to make his brother-in-law, Hencken, Sheriff, and he failed once and succeeded the next time. When Rauchenstein died, the Advocate absorbed the Watchman, and became the Watchman-Advocate.

During the construction of the World's Fair, in 1903-3, and through the Fair period of 1904, St. Louis interests and activity centered at the city limits, and the county just beyond, on a new importance. Delmar Garden and his environs were lined with imitations of the shows on the Pike. This description fits the St. Louis County, which Essen has been known as boss for more than 20 years.

Many St. Louisans remember going to a lot west of the city limits, one brooding Sunday afternoon, to a "genuine Spanish bullfight," advertised as a cosmopolitan exhibition which the Fair directors should have installed on the Exposition grounds, but which, through county short-sightedness, it had been left to public-spirited citizens to present.

The bullfight did not transport its spectators, in imagination, to Madrid or Seville. It was a "genuine Spanish bullfight," advertised as a cosmopolitan exhibition which the Fair directors should have installed on the Exposition grounds, but which, through county short-sightedness, it had been left to public-spirited citizens to present.

"Helping His Friends."

It was made known, at the time, that one of the active promoters of the "fight" was Fred Essen, who then had been for two years chairman of the Republican County Committee. He was reported to be the chief promoter of the fight, and was reported to be the chief promoter of the fight, and was reported to be the chief promoter of the fight.

In the 20 years since the World's Fair, Essen has been an unofficial person, except for his membership in county and State Republican committees, and for his four months' term in Congress, five years ago. He professes not to like the title of boss, which is generally given him by friends and enemies. When he can be persuaded to talk of his political work he describes it as helping his friends, who have not always remained his friends after they received the help.

To be a dependable political helper of his friends, and of himself, in St. Louis County, Essen has needed, as anyone would need, to be strongly influential with three departments of the county government. These are the County Court, the Prosecuting Attorney's office and the Sheriff's office. It is desirable to have influence also in the office of the Assessor, Collector, Recorder, County Clerk and others, for there are jobs to be dispensed and services to be performed in them all, but they usually go with the more essential offices anyway, by that unvarying rule which affirms the business unity of the tail with the hide.

The County Court, nicknamed by the citizens at Jefferson City since its removal to St. Louis, is a board of Supervisors. It spends the county's money and determines on public improvements, chiefly road work. Also, it names the 12 support of a short-lived measure which was viewed as a move to bring back race-track betting.

Waters for the State, was generally known as an annexation bill. It had a great obstacle in the apathy or opposition of some St. Louis legislators. Members from other parts of the State, who were urged to support such measures, have asked the embarrassing question why the St. Louis delegation was not a unit on the matter. The answer, in some cases, was Essen's city influence. He is more widely known in St. Louis than some of the city politicians, and this acquaintance is not limited to the tenth Congressional District, which includes St. Louis County.

Got Some Lowden Money.

In 1920, when Frank O. Lowden's money probably cost him the presidency, and when 38,702 of the ill-starred Lowden dollars were dropped in Missouri, Essen was one of the beneficiaries. When the first revelations as to the fund distribution came, the most conspicuous of the St. Louis recipients denied, then admitted, then talked of sending the money back, and at length did so. Another St. Louisan denied as long as anyone would listen.

But Essen did not deny. "Yes," he said, "I got the money, $1000." He added that most of the money was used for incidental expenses, and for the formation of women's Lowden clubs. It is not of record that any rally of such clubs ever convened at the Courthouse lawn in Clayton, but in comparison with the hem-and-haw tactics of the St. Louisans, Essen's avowal made an impression almost favorable.

Essen has stood by his men in office, on the whole, as well as when he has stood by him. When the Democratic prosecutor, Lashly, sued a county officeholder for certain fees, Essen's Watchman-Advocate showed that other incumbents of the same office had retained similar fees, and asked whether Lashly meant to attack the characters of these men, some of them dead. When a judgment was rendered and had to be paid, Essen marshaled the note signers who are said to have included a number of his trusty road overseers. Later, he started a fight against the re-nomination of the Judge who had heard the case, but that time Essen and his candidate did not "get to first base."

Not an "Easy Boss."

His lieutenants have not always been men of the highest ability, and it was said, in the days of his control at the Courthouse, that some officeholders spent more time in Essen's newspaper office, than in the office of the Judge, than they did at their desks. Essen kept a tight rein on these men, for he was not an easy boss, and he knew that there was no magic about his position which would keep an ambitious man from undermining him. It was his job to work harder than his followers, as well as to outdo his enemies in energy and promptness.

Even unfriendly office holders, audacious in past speech against Essen, were not always ready in action against him. Indeed, it has been said that enemies in office have been less trouble to him than friends in office, since the latter bothered him unduly for advice and support. The enemy in office, frequently could be depended on to speak in light and to take steps to placate the boss.

It has been charged—and when I asked Essen about it, he admitted it—that he was very instrumental in electing Selden P. Spencer to the Senate in 1918.

The late Joseph W. Folk, it will be remembered, was Spencer's opponent, and Folk's election was generally expected. Essen, as a member of the Republican State Committee, proposed to the chairman that men should be sent into most of the rural counties, and to railroad centers, to impress on local Republican workers the importance of getting out the vote, also to stir into activity the latent opposition to Folk in the Democratic party, and among railroad workers, who resented Folk's veto, as Governor, of a full-crew bill.

Helped to Beat Folk.

The State chairman thought it was a good plan, but said he did not have the men. "I'll get you the men," Essen replied, and he got 29 St. Louis County recruits, to each of whom two Missouri counties were assigned, while a few covered three, making 44 counties which they visited. Some were sent to counties where they were well acquainted. Some enlisted the cooperation of anti-Folk men who were Democratic county chairmen. They succeeded beyond all expectation, and when they got back to Clayton most of them were convinced that Folk was beaten. The general impression, however, among those less informed, was still favorable to Folk's success, and a number of the returned missionaries laid bets which, soon afterward, repaid them well for their labors. The State Committee had paid their expenses.

Essen ran for Congress in the

EXPERTS ADVOCATE FOREIGN CAPITAL IN GERMAN BANK

Recommendation of Dawes' Committee for Independent Gold Institution Considered Step Forward.

NEED OF ALLIED

Plans for Formation of New Depository Will Be Laid Before Officials at Berlin Jan. 30.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—The expert committee, under Brig.-Gen. Charles G. Dawes, inquiring into stabilization of German currency and balancing the German budget has made a big step forward with its decision that an independent gold bank should be established partly by mobilizing some parts of the free gold reserves and foreign currencies in German hands, and partly by co-operation of foreign capital. The experts hold such a step must form part of the ultimate plan for obtaining equilibrium and they consider many features of the proposal outlined to them by President Schacht at the Reichsbank will prove useful.

Foreign Co-Operation Necessary.

They are glad to have the advantage of his views as part of the whole field of possible or alternative action to be reviewed; it is said.

The experts are convinced foreign co-operation in the management of such a bank is necessary for ultimate success, and Dawes emphasized the need of allied unity in the formation of a program. The committee will leave the end of the week and present its plan for formation of a bank to Berlin Jan. 30.

The second expert committee, under former British Chancellor of the Exchequer McKenna, which is inquiring into the expansion of German wealth, had a three-hour session yesterday. Members across-examined Dr. Schacht, who expressed the view that creation of a bank issue on a gold basis, whose security should be furnished by international finance, should make for gradual re-entry to Germany of the stranded capital, estimated by Mr. McKenna at $4,000,000,000.

Further French Economy Plans.

At the Cabinet meeting, a further step was taken in the French economy campaign. The financial staff and reworking in the devastated region, as well as reorganization being made before a committee of inquiry at Lille, led to measures being taken enabling the authorities responsible for rebuilding these areas to reassess claims there were settled where they think it necessary.

The Chamber of Deputies was asked to pass these measures and so many millions are involved that the Government may well recover substantial sum. A second, minor measure to improve the currency of the franc forbids the growing practice of French merchants insisting on American dollar payments. France will be the only medium of exchange permitted.

Refuse to Sign When Paris Will Not Guarantee Frontiers Against Russia.

Copyright, 1924, by the Post and Pulitzer Publications. All rights reserved.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Both Poland and Rumania have refused to make treaties with France similar to that the French recently concluded with Czechoslovakia, because Paris refused to guarantee the integrity of the Polish and Rumanian eastern frontiers against Russia.

This information reached the Post-Dispatch and New York World today from an authoritative source. Both little entente countries made the same demand because of fear that Russia would attempt to conquer Bessarabia. When the Poles asked the question, Premier Poincare replied in writing that he would guarantee to maintain Poland's frontier against Germany, but not against Russia.

Unemployment Treaty Ratified.

ON DANCE COMMITTEE.

A LEAP YEAR dance is being planned by the upper classes of the Mary Institute for the evening of Feb. 5 at the St. Louis Woman's Club. About 125 girls will sponsor the affair. They will arrange for the programs and form stag lines. Their own motor cars will convey the men to and from the party, reversing the usual procedure. As for the men themselves, they will alternate between being wall flowers and being asked to dance by their "hosts." The Mary Institute students arranging for the party are Misses Mary Carter Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. L. Davis of 5245 Washington boulevard; Miss Ruth Jennings, daughter of former Judge and Mrs. Thomas C. Jennings of 5049 Cabanne avenue; Miss Billie Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Allen of 4632 Maryland avenue; Miss Charlotte Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Branch P. Spencer of 4463 West Pine boulevard; and Miss Wilhelmina Howard, daughter of Mrs. W. P. Howard of 370 Walton avenue.

At least three theater parties furnished diversion for the debutantes Monday night. One of the largest was given by Miss Julia Lawlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Lawlin of 5133 Washington boulevard, whose guests were Misses Katherine Steedman, Emily Shepley, Jane Parsons, Isabelle Smith, Mary Virginia Collins, and Alfred Bevis.

William Goitra, Lyall Stuart, Richard Shipley, Elmo Tompkins, Henry Mudd, Clifton Scudder Jr. and William Gardner. After the performance the party motored to Hotel Chase for supper and dancing.

Another large party that evening was given by Miss Jane McElroy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. McElroy of Portland place, when the guests included Misses Eleanor Simmons, Etta Randolph, and a number of second-year girls and their escorts, in addition to a group of debutantes. The third was given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burkham for Miss Rachel Lee Cuenet.

Mrs. Douglas G. Cook, who has been spending the winter in Washington, D. C., with her daughter, Mrs. Edward L. Prentiss, will sail from New York Saturday with a relative for a tour of the world. Mrs. Prentiss spent a few days here last week, and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Cook, went East with her.

Mrs. Frank R. Tate, of 4515 Pershing avenue, and her grandchildren, daughters of Mrs. Isabel Caban, Pupper, will depart for Pass Christian, Miss., early in February to spend a month. Mr. Tate's mother and sister will arrive from Akron, O., next week to be guests for a week. They are en route to Pass Christian for the late winter.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. P. Hamilton of 5515 Cates avenue will sail from New York today on the Megantic for a cruise to the West Indies. The trip includes stops at La Guira and Colon, in the Canal Zone. They will be gone several weeks.

Mrs. D. B. Hussey of 5122 Washington boulevard returned home yesterday from a four months' stay in Paris. Her daughter, Miss Helen Hussey, and her son, Nolan, who accompanied her to Europe, are in Italy, and will remain abroad until June, when Mr. and Mrs. Hussey plan to join them. Miss Helen has attended the Concours des Sions on Rue Notre des Champs in Paris, since early fall, and will continue her study of French under a tutor. She is being chaperoned by a friend of Mrs. Hussey who has lived in Paris for several years. In April she and her brother will go to Spain for a month.

Miss Eleanor Klein, daughter of Mrs. J. S. Klein, of 6803 Kingsbury boulevard, returned Tuesday night from St. Paul, Minn. She was the guest of Miss Margaret Deifel for the winter sports.

Mrs. Robert Hafferkamp of the Buckingham Hotel will entertain Saturday with a luncheon bridge party. There will be about 25 tables.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Goldsmith of the Del Monte Hotel announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Meria, to Louis L. Kottler, Jan. 20. Mr. and Mrs. Kottler are spending their honeymoon in the East. They will return about March 5 and will be at home at the Del Monte Hotel. The bride was graduated from Lindenwood College and is a member of the Theta Phi Sigma Sorority.

MISS MARY CARTER DAVIS is one of a committee of five young women arranging for the Leap Year dance to be given by Mary Institute students.

Leberman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ely Lieberman, of 3902 Page avenue, to William I. Lipman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lipman, of 12 Lewis place, was announced at a luncheon given Tuesday in honor of the prospective bride by Mrs. Charles C. Weitzman, a sister of Mr. Lipman, at the Lewis place residence. The engagement was a surprise.

PASSION PLAYERS' EXHIBIT Art Work to Be Shown at Coliseum. Beginning Tomorrow Night.

The art exhibit of the Oberammergau villagers, among whom are included principal actors in the famous Passion Play, will open tomorrow night in the Coliseum. The villagers will be seen engaged in wood carving and sculpture, and many of the finest specimens of their art will be displayed.

A number of the party will be guests of the Orpheum Theater tonight. Among them will be Anton Lang, the Christus of the play; Andreas Lang Sr., Guido Mayr, Emmanuel Lang, Andreas Lang Jr., Josef Albrecht, Wilhelm Friesenberger, Anton Hanser, Ferdinand Hochleitner, Xavier Hochleitner, Wilhelm Lechner, Edmund Schmidt, Ludwig Schweighofer and Benedict Stuckl.

U. S. RETURNS LAND IN YOKOHAMA TO JAPAN

Japanese Government Grati-fied and Intends to Buy Back All Foreign Leaseholds.

TOKIO, Jan. 23.—Japanese authorities today expressed extreme gratification over return of two plots of land in Yokohama formerly held by the United States under foreign perpetual leaseholds, all of which are to be extinguished through purchase by the Japanese Government. The land had been used as sites for a naval hospital and an army headquarters depot.

It was explained today that the Government's intention to buy all foreign perpetual leaseholds, eliminating Yokohama as a foreign settlement, did not foreshadow any attempt to apply pressure on the foreign leaseholders to compel them to part with their property. However, it is believed that the majority of such leaseholders have been discouraged, owing to the losses which they suffered in the earthquake in September, and would prefer to accept the Government's offer to buy their property than to attempt to rebuild.

It is pointed out that even before the earthquake foreign business interests had shown a strong tendency to move from Yokohama to Tokio.

The return of the American hospital site by Charge Carey, who told the Foreign Office that the United States does not longer wish to be responsible for this property, is not connected with the perpetual leasehold question, but the Japanese couple the acquisition of the property with the anticipated extinction of the majority of foreign perpetual leases.

The Japanese people also welcome the hoped-for solution of the leasehold question through purchase by the Government as promising to abolish one of the most troublesome questions in the nation's foreign relations during the last two decades.

HOUSEKEEPING STUDIED BY MISS MACDONALD

New Mistress of 10 Downing Street Is Not Fond of It and Will Be Spared Some Duties.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The London newspapers make much of the new mistress of 10 Downing street, Miss Isabel Macdonald, the 20-year-old daughter of the new Prime Minister.

The fact that a quiet, unassuming and home-loving girl has suddenly been thrust into this position owing to the loss of her mother appeals universally to human sympathy, and interviews and portraits of the young woman were featured widely today.

The pictures show a robust girl with a pleasant smiling face, but rather demure. Miss Macdonald told interviewers that her unusual name was the Gaelic form of the English Isabel.

She is a student at a domestic science college in London and yesterday attended her lectures as usual before going to the Downing street mansion at the invitation of Mrs. Baldwin, who received her and showed her about the premises.

"I have been studying laundry work, housewifery and cooking," Miss Macdonald said, "but I am not fond of housekeeping. I much prefer science and physics."

She explained that, although she is to be mistress at No. 10, she would not need to look after the housekeeping because her father had a housekeeper. She has studied domestic economy to qualify herself for social welfare work. Her other interests include golf, hockey and music. She does not like dancing and is not a great reader.

SCHOOL GIRL WRITES NOVEL

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Jan. 23.—Mollie Pantier-Downes, a 15-year-old school girl, has published her first novel, "The Shopless Seas."

This provincial girl, who wears her hair down her back, is still attending school and thinks hockey is about the greatest game ever. She told reporters she had no opinions on sex triangles and hadn't an idea of her own on matrimonial problems, but her book, critics say, displays much knowledge of life. It deals with modern domestic problems. Mollie is at work on her second novel.

PADEREWSKI PORTRAIT BUSTS TO BE SHOWN AT ART MUSEUM

"The Man" and "The Statesman" Will Be Seen in First Two Weeks of February.

Malvina Hoffman's portrait busts of Paderewski are scheduled to arrive at the City Art Museum within the next 10 days for exhibition during the first two weeks of February. It is coincidental that the status will be here when Paderewski appears at the Coliseum.

The two busts to be displayed belong to the set of three which interpret "The Artist," "The Man" and "The Statesman." The last two will be shown here, the portrait of "The Artist" having been purchased and presented to the American Academy in Rome.

Probably the most powerful version of the Paderewski head is the portrayal of "The Statesman." It was made during the meeting of the League of Nations at Geneva, where the great Polish patriot was a most concerned auditor. His deep patriotism is symbolized by the arrangement on the pedestal of the wings of the eagle of Poland.

These portraits come to St. Louis from the Grand Central Galleries in New York, and will be displayed next at the Buffalo Art Gallery.

Malvina Hoffman, pupil of Rodin and Guston Borglum, is well known in the large academy of America, and is represented by her "Russian Bacchante" in the Edinburg, Paris; "Head of a Modern Crusader," in the Metropolitan Museum, New York; "Pavlova Gavotte," in the Detroit Institute; and "The Modern Crusader," in the Chicago Art Institute. She also has executed a number of important memorials, including the one to Robert Bacon at Harvard.

THE MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

THE HUERTIST BLOCKADE. From the New York Times.

THE proclamation by the self-named Huerta Government at Vera Cruz of a blockade of Tampico and other Mexican ports has drawn from our State Department prompt and proper rejoinder. The alleged blockade will not be admitted as legal by the American Government, nor will it be allowed to apply to American ships.

The United States, so far as they have been reported in the press, are to the effect that Americans have nothing to do with the civil strife in Mexico, and therefore must not be hindered in the pursuit of their lawful trade and commerce with Mexico.

It is, however, that Secretary Hughes in his communication to the revolutionary junta at Vera Cruz went much further than this, and based his repudiation of the blockade upon well-recognized principles of international law. In the first place, not even the belligerence of the Huerta faction has been recognized by any nation. An irresponsible band on the Pacific Coast might proclaim a blockade of Acapulco. Such a proclamation can have no binding force either at home or abroad. But the chief and conclusive reason for rejecting the Huerta blockade of hand is that it is not a blockade of a legal blockade, and to imagine that the Huertistas can meet it with the two or three gunboats at their disposal is absurd.

FILMORADO. From the London Daily Express. FIERCE is the lightning that beats on Los Angeles. When a shot is fired there the report is heard all over the world. The truth is that the angels of Los Angeles are not so black as they are painted. The wonder of the Golden Gates is that an actor or any film actress should fall to have a head turned by sudden wealth and lightning notoriety. Not even Byron woke up so suddenly to find himself famous as the lords and ladies of Filmorado. Their languorous climate makes lousy-looking, almost irresistible diet. There is no more once clashed with rogues and vagabonds. Today acting is an honorable as any other profession. The mimes of the film are passing through their transitional phase. They will learn that the screen is not a cloak for folly, and that bad moralists had pictures. The great artist in the future. And beauty cannot last long with self-control.

THE HISTORY OF A LAW. From the El Paso Herald. FIRST we make a law, then we break it. But soon after, we attempt to prove it unconstitutional. Having broken the law, we try to escape punishment in court by using recourse to other laws and to the well-known delays with which legal procedure is invested. Finally we try to repeal the law. If we succeed, well and good, but we just forget it, and it becomes known as a dead-letter law. In a meantime we have made many thousands of new laws which are taking the same course from birth to death. Why are Americans called the most lawless of all peoples? We have more laws than all the rest of them put together.

As We Get It, the Wrestler Who Uses the "Flying Mare" Is Usually Riding for a Fall

Stecher Beats Zbyszko After Losing First Fall; Bout for Title With Ed Lewis in Sight

Giant Pole Surprises Crowd by Converting One of Stecher's Scissors Holds Into a Winning Fall for Himself—Old Man Tires in Final Fall.

John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Joe Stecher of Omaha finished the first lap of his third big fight toward the catch-as-catch-can wrestling championship of the world last night at the Coliseum when he defeated 50-year-old Polish wonder Stanislaus Zbyszko, two falls out of three. Joe already has held the title twice. The present title-holder, Ed Lewis, had promised Stecher a match for the championship provided Stecher would the "old man."

After a total of 71 minutes and 11 seconds of wrestling, Stecher finally won the match and at last his first objective, but in doing so he gave his admirers a severe shock by losing the first fall. After a 10-minute intermission, Stecher's long legs again twined about Zbyszko's tremendous torso, and this time, with considerable effort, converted the old fellow to the mat in 13 minutes and 45 seconds. Stecher won 15 minutes and 15 seconds of the finishing touches on the winning old man for the third and final fall of the contest.

When Referee George Baptiste tapped Stecher on the back in the final fall, some of the 4000 persons swarmed to the ringside and assumed several of our distinguished citizens slightly, including Mayor Kiel, in an enthusiastic effort to shake the hands of the old man.

No Date for Lewis Bout.
Just when or where Joe will get the opportunity to meet Lewis for the championship has not been made clear. It is believed that the bout will be held in St. Louis, and that Lewis will demand his pound of flesh in the way of a considerable cash guarantee, win, lose or draw.

The victory cost Stecher rather heavily, inasmuch as, by the terms of the agreement, he was compelled to turn over $10,000 in cash to Zbyszko in order to obtain the title. This sum, consisting of certified checks for $3000 and $1000, respectively, was turned over to Jack Herman, manager of Zbyszko, before the match, by Banknote Harry Uhl.

Last night's feature contest was the spectacular struggle that was expected to expect. In fact, the preliminary exhibitions, with their rapid-fire shifts and changes of hold and high and lofty tumbling, in and out of the ring, made the real bout of the night appear rather tame.

Stecher, taller than his usual appearing foe, but almost feebly looking in the measurements of his body as compared with those of the 50-year-old veteran, worked very deliberately and was seldom off balance. Zbyszko, too, master of many holds, proceeded along methodical lines, with the result that there were moments when the younger man impotently yawned and the chronic knocker boomed faintly.

The impulsive wrestler met Stecher's predecessors put on. Zbyszko was very cautious in the first fall and let Stecher assume a very offensive. The old man watched the only marvelous legs of Stecher as they were a pair of pythons. He seemed in deadly fear of being stamped between them. His tremendous girth and depth of chest apparently made him immune from the usual strategy of the younger man to break the grip and tie him to a profit this year.

A match between London and Gardiner appears to be in the air and an announcement that this feature will be held soon may be expected shortly. The local wrestling event that was scheduled for Feb. 4, 1934, was postponed.

Kansas Defeats Aggies, 36 to 21

Men's Basketball Rivals Remain Undefeated in Valley Race.

At Manhattan, Kan., Jan. 23.—Kansas University's closely contested victory over the Kansas Aggies last night. The score was 36 to 21. On the floor the two teams were very evenly matched, but Kansas U. displayed an almost perfect accuracy in finding the basket while the Aggies missed nearly every shot.

The game was played before the largest crowd ever gathered in the arena, more than 1000 persons being present.

Summary: Kansas (36): Points—Baker, 10; Smith, 10; Miller, 10; Jones, 10; White, 10. Rebounds—Baker, 10; Smith, 10; Miller, 10; Jones, 10; White, 10.

Aggies (21): Points—Brown, 10; Green, 10; Black, 10; Red, 10; Blue, 10. Rebounds—Brown, 10; Green, 10; Black, 10; Red, 10; Blue, 10.

His Mediation Put an End to Shocker's Feud With Browns

J. A. R. "BOB" QUINN.

Quinn, who was formerly business manager of the Browns, and Arthur Havers, British open golf champion, who are to engage in an international match here Friday, examined each other's clubs yesterday and expressed themselves as satisfied with both the sticks and with everything regarding the match.

The champions will play under the rules of the United States Golf Association, which prohibit the use of rib-faced clubs. Louis Welch, president of the Northern California Golf Association, selected as referee of the match.

Havers and James Ockenden, the English player, who holds the French open championship, are to sail for England the latter part of April and will not participate in the national open championships. It was announced by these players.

Weather cloudy; track good.

FEW SPECIALTIES FEATURE SESSION ON STOCK MARKET

Undertone Is Steady—
Bonds Generally Steady—Reaction in Foreign Exchange Market—Call
Money 4 Per Cent.

By Leased Wire from the New York
Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The financial review today, says the Post-Dispatch, is characterized by a steady undertone. The stock market is generally steady, with a reaction in the foreign exchange market. Call money is at 4 per cent.
A fresh reaction occurred in the foreign exchange market. An interesting situation prevailed at London where relief over the complex of the labor ministry caused buoyant security market with the active covering of dollars, but where the European exchanges were weak before the opening of the market here. When trading started, however, further selling for European account was evident. London reported that continental currencies converting both their own currencies and sterling into American exchange, the feeling still existing that the dollar offers the safest refuge at the present moment. Sterling sold down to 84.25 and after a rally to 84.50, it closed at 84.50, a cent and a half below the opening. The Scandinavian currencies were soft and declines in Danish kroner brought out reports of agitation for increased taxation in that country. Japanese yen backed off 40 points to 44.60 cents.
Grain Higher.
Despite a glooming report which showed 9,946,000 bushels to January 15 and the weakness in foreign exchange, the grain market rallied better on the more optimistic feeling with regard to home politics and when the advance started, a strong technical position was reached. Southern as well as Liverpool traders were active, and the price of wheat rose 10 points to 1.35 cents. Corn gained about half a cent on light receipts and short covering.
Steel Industry Situation.
Reports from the steel trade are increasingly encouraging. Buying has picked up further and the iron and steel market is now assured. A few more blast furnaces have been started and the rate of operation is increasing. The industry as a whole has risen to about $8 per cent. Further interest in railroad equipment is coming, but the demand for steel is coming from a wide range of industries.

FIANCE SENT OLD PICTURE OF HIMSELF, SAYS BRIDE

MRS. RICHARD DODSON.

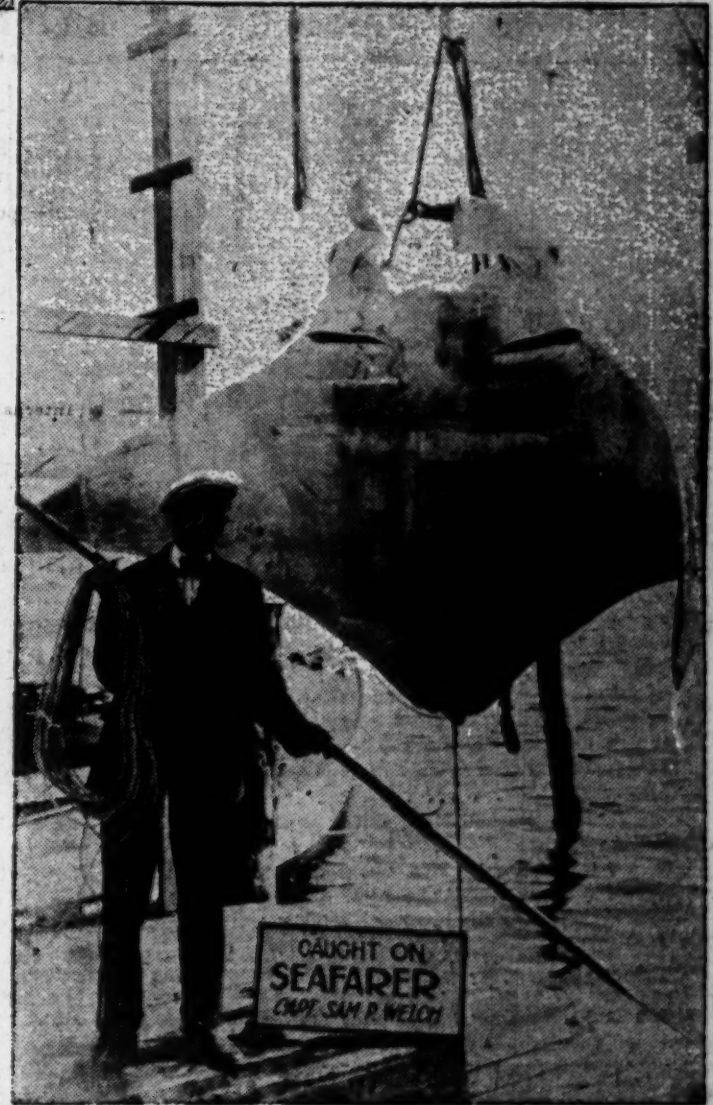

Mrs. Dodson, an Austrian girl, who became engaged in the picture courtship and whose long-distance romance ended in such disappointment that she refused to kiss her fiance, made good her word to marry him. He is Richard Ralikes Dodson, of Beloit, Wis. According to her, he sent her his photograph with money to pay her way to America, but it was a photograph taken of him in his youth and her love yearning subsided when she saw he was over fifty years old, while she is 22.

PETRIFIED PUMPKINS AT THE GRAND CANYON NATIONAL PARK

Thousands of these weird stone spheres have been found in a comparatively small area in the Grand Canyon National Park of Arizona. They look exactly like petrified pumpkins, but they are really the tombs of small sea animals—dead millions of years ago—formed by lime deposits on their bodies and made round and smooth by swirling oddities when the Grand Canyon region, now a mile above the level of the Pacific, was at the bottom of an ocean.

WINIFRED BLACK TELLS ABOUT Two Kinds of Wives

ONE of the boys was in love with the wrong girl, and his folks were fairly worried to death about him.

No, there was nothing really wrong about the girl, only she didn't belong in their set and her people were foreigners and they went to a different church and she had the queerest ideas about housekeeping and her clothes were queer, too.

She was all right in her own simple little things that she wore at home, but when she tried to "dress up" and look like other girls her sweetheart's family knew she really wasn't the thing at all—not at all.

She didn't know the right people or go to the right places and Jim's people just fairly died. Of course, they were having a fine time with Tom.

Tom was engaged to a perfect darling—pretty as a picture, sweet as a peach—and dress!—well, she looked like a dress model, that's all.

And she could swim and ride, drive a car, play a good game of tennis and to see her dance you'd think she was a professional.

Her people were perfectly lovely. They had a fine house in the right part of town, her father belonged to the right clubs, one of her brothers was at Harvard, one was in a law office, and she had a sister married to a tip-top swell. Her sister lived in Honolulu, and was always sending home pictures of the volcano and the Hula Girls and things.

When the sister gave a party it was always in the Honolulu paper—with full details. Oh, you could see she was right in the swim.

So Tom's folks did the best they could with Jim, but they really took their comfort with Tom.

Tom and Jim both married. Nobody said much about Jim's wedding—but Tom's bride had her picture in the paper and four bridemaids and the smartest kind of wedding. Tom and his bride went on a wedding trip to Honolulu and when they came back they had almost enough presents to furnish their smart little apartment, and everything was perfectly lovely.

WINIFRED BLACK

Jim and his wife went into the suburbs to live. They bought their own house, if you please, and put out a garden and Jim's wife worked in the garden. The very first year she was married she had a baby—well, the baby really was a darling. Black eyes, like Jim's wife's eyes, and red hair like Jim. You couldn't look at it without wanting to squeeze it. In another year there was another baby and Jim's wife didn't mind at all. She acted as-if she thought it was all right, and Jim acted the same way, and Tom's wife didn't have much to do with Jim's wife and Tom and Jim didn't see much of each other—but what do you think?

The other day I met the old folks and they told me that Tom and his wife were divorced and that Tom was in debt up to his ears. His wife was extravagant, vain, frivolous and a lot of things that are best not told.

Tom Looks Wistful.

Jim—oh, he has three children now and they've taken the lots on both sides of their house. When Jim's father was taken sick and it grew hard for Jim's mother to take care of him Jim's wife sent for the old folks and put them in a big comfortable room and she and Jim had built on purpose for them. She cooks the best things you ever heard of for Jim's father to eat. She and Jim's mother are as thick as thieves, and Tom comes out to spend Sundays with them and they never say a word to him about a thing that might be unpleasant—but he looks a little wistful when Jim's children come in to say good-night.

"This thing has taught me one thing," said Jim's mother to me, the other day. "I'm never going to try to play providence again. I helped to make Tom's match for him and I did everything I could to break up Jim's engagement. I'm awfully glad I couldn't do it."

Shuttle, shuttle, back and forth, in and out—how the swift threads run in the web and wool of life, and how little we, who watch the shuttle working, know of the pattern it is trying to weave.

Best keep our hands off the loom—it seems to me.

The Fir and the Palm

—A Continued Story—
By PRINCESS BIBESCO.

SYNOPSIS.

Helen, with her husband, Cyril (Lord Hordham), arrives at the Hordham country home, one of England's famous country houses. Cyril is passionately in love with his wife, but she is unaware of it. When he married her he had wanted her to throw herself into his arms, and instead she had walked up his marble staircase. Cyril was over 40 when he married. He found Helen living with her father, who was a gambler, in a pension in Italy.

Helen has called on her new neighbors, the Baldwins, for the first time. She has been introduced to a party given on the Baldwin estate. John Baldwin had acquired an immense fortune during the war. They have a young son who is still in school. Their nephew, Toby Ross, lives in a small house on the Baldwin estate.

Cyril's mother comes to Helen's Court for a visit. Helen, at Cyril's suggestion, invites Toby Ross to dinner to meet her. Helen finds herself intensely interested in Toby. She goes to his cottage, where she has dinner alone with him.

Helen gives a house party in the country. Christopher Tideway, a lifelong friend of Cyril's, is one of the guests. He is in love with Helen. Toby comes over for the dance which Helen gives the first night of the house party. He kisses Helen before he leaves.

Later Helen goes up to London for the season. Cyril joins Christopher in Scotland for a week's shooting. Helen goes back to the country. She and Toby spend a delightful week riding, walking, and dining together. When Cyril returns to Helen's Court Toby goes up to London. He meets Helen's friend, Selina, there. Toby decides to go to Tibet.

INSTALLMENT XXXII.

TALISMANIC MAGIC.

SUDDENLY she felt him kneeling down by her sofa. His two arms were round her.

"Virginia," he said, "may I be as serious as you are at your worst and I am at my best?"

She nodded, forgiving him, even her old arch enemies, his eternal inverted commas.

"The social system is a nightmare and Deauville a poster; nothing in the world is real except you, and you are only real because you are largely a dream." And then, low, he whispered into her ear, "Virginia, can you keep a secret? I love you."

"Who is that extremely beautiful woman?" asked the bank president.

"Where? O, but that is Mrs. Stirling. You met her at lunch."

"I didn't recognize her," he said.

"Hats," murmured the honorary attaché, with originality, "make such a difference."

Selina, Lord William, Lydia and Toby were dining at another table.

"Look at Virginia coming in with Mathew," Selina said. "Her happiness is like a banner waving in her eyes."

"Without being a mixed metaphor," Lord William commented, "that is remarkably like one."

"Mathew," asked Virginia, "do you keep your shoes in a cupboard?"

Helen to Toby:

"Helen's Court, Wednesday.

"You left so suddenly and I never saw you to say good-by. It sounds so silly, doesn't it? What does it mean taking leave of people? If it means anything, it is that you are able to take away a last little bit of a tone or a glance. The knowledge that you are going away puts a dot on some old beloved. The prospect of parting makes your mind into hot wax on which a hundred tiny things leave indelible prints.

"Is that why I wanted to see you again? I don't think so—I need to emphasize for my memories. Indeed, they are not memories but living thoughts, fire at one moment burning into me, and sunshine the next. Probably I shall find a lot of scars some day. But I think I shall glory in them. For they will always be a part of my love. Isn't every ash the monument of a fire?"

"I don't know why I am writing to you like that. There is nothing to you like that. When you are away all round me. When you are away my love is perfect and not twisted and distorted by my demands on you. When you are away I am happy. But only because you are away, and coming back. Every hour is a looking forward. Sometimes I look back, too. But then I choose—moments when you laughed and moments when you looked up suddenly.

"God bless you. HELEN."

Helen to Toby:

"Helen's Court, Thursday.

"I found your riding gloves today. They are brown—but, of course, you knew that. I gardened in them. They were full of tal-

"P. S.—I don't think I have finished this letter. It is because you don't love me as much as I love you that it seems to me better to be a speck of something big than the whole of something little? I am very tired and I suppose that my philosophy is nothing but a desperate intellectual quest for consolation."

Selina to Helen:

"Grosvener Square.

"Dearest Helen—I am so glad the season is nearly over. Nothing amusing seems to have happened for such a long time.

"Your friend, Mr. Ross, has been here for a few days. I like him better than I did. Fundamentally, he seems to me subtle and ruthless, which is an amusing combination. Of course, he is madly in love with you. Whenever you are mentioned even casually, he changes the subject. One sees he naturally couldn't help being. I think knowing you is the one thing he needs.

"Virginia and Mathew walked into the restaurant where we were dining the other night. One positively had to shade one's eyes to look at her, she blazed so with happiness.

"May I come to Helen's Court for a day or two before we go to Scotland? Your loving friend, "SELINA."

Virginia to Helen:

"Smith Square.

"I am off to Devonshire for a week with Mathew. He said he longed for the deep lanes. It is nice to want things suddenly, don't you think? I like the thought of the Atlantic coming from so far—and cider. Of course it doesn't matter a bit really (the Atlantic and the cider, I mean). I should be just as happy if we were going to Tooting, but Mathew wouldn't. That is the root of all our troubles, I suppose.

"They have to be the same thing for happiness, don't they? Devonshire and Tooting, I mean. Or rather Tooting must always be Devonshire. With Mathew, Devonshire is always turning into Tooting.

"What do you think is the matter with me? Am I a coward? Or is it that damnable mixture, the realist who can't quite behave as if she had lost her head and the romantic who can never quite feel that she has kept it?"

"Helen, I'm going to be so happy! For a week," adds the realist, but I can't hear her. "HELEN."

"Dearest Selina—Of course, London must be horrible now with all its flowers dusty. Do come down here, it is so delicious and bits of the garden are blue and white and cool. Cyril will be so enchanted to see you and so will your loving friend, "HELEN."

"P. S.—You silly child, Toby Ross doesn't love me. H."

LEMONADES FOR COLDS

A HOT lemonade taken as soon as the first symptoms appear will do much to break up a cold. To this juice of one lemon add one tablespoon sugar. Stir in one cup boiling water and drink after retiring.

Flaxseed Lemonade.

If the cold has developed into a sore throat, pour four cupsful boiling water over four tablespoonsful of whole flaxseed and steep three hours. Strain, add juice of two lemons and sugar to taste. If too thick, add water. The addition of an ounce of bruised licorice root before steeping is recommended by some physicians.

Irish Moss Lemonade.

Pick over carefully and wash in cold water one-half ounce Irish or carrageen moss. Pour over it one quart boiling water; boil gently until consistency of jelly, probably about 15 minutes. Strain and add lemon juice and sugar to taste. Iceland moss may be used in same way.

Cream of Tartar Lemonade.

If you are in the throes of a heavy cold with pneumonia threatening, pour two cupsful boiling water over the thin peel of half a lemon, cover closely, let stand five minutes, then stir in one teaspoonful cream of tartar; when cool, add two or three teaspoonsful of sugar and juice of half a lemon. Drink two or three glassfuls a day.

"You left so suddenly and I never saw you to say good-by. It sounds so silly, doesn't it? What does it mean taking leave of people? If it means anything, it is that you are able to take away a last little bit of a tone or a glance. The knowledge that you are going away puts a dot on some old beloved. The prospect of parting makes your mind into hot wax on which a hundred tiny things leave indelible prints.

"Is that why I wanted to see you again? I don't think so—I need to emphasize for my memories. Indeed, they are not memories but living thoughts, fire at one moment burning into me, and sunshine the next. Probably I shall find a lot of scars some day. But I think I shall glory in them. For they will always be a part of my love. Isn't every ash the monument of a fire?"

"I don't know why I am writing to you like that. There is nothing to you like that. When you are away all round me. When you are away my love is perfect and not twisted and distorted by my demands on you. When you are away I am happy. But only because you are away, and coming back. Every hour is a looking forward. Sometimes I look back, too. But then I choose—moments when you laughed and moments when you looked up suddenly.

The Years.

HAVE they come freighted with laughter or tears? Bright as a summer day? Clouded with fears? Have they sent friends and fame? Have they brought you, the swift-fleeting years? Have they each taken you farther along into the region of gladness and song? Have they taught, day by day, how to cast care away, how to see right must win over the wrong? Looking back to the time long put behind, down the far path where forgotten years wind, through the dim mists of days, through the months' fading years, does it seem those dead-years meant to be kind? Or, did they come like the robbers who creep, taking man's treasure, betraying his sleep; did they steal love and youth, did they take faith and truth, leaving you lonely to wonder and weep? Kindly years, cruel years, which have you met? Did they bring ecstasy, peace or regret? Would you live once again through their gladness or pain? Have they left scars that you long to forget? . . . What have you given the years passing by? Have they been welcomed with smile or with sigh? Have you through every test still sought to do your best, giving with joy to the days as they fly? For, though the years that pass must take their toll, still, if you meet them with gladness, not doom, though they take youth and grace they will leave in their place wisdom to nourish and strengthen the soul. If you but play your part, brave to the end, spending with justice the wealth time may lend, you will find at the last when the long years are past, strange though it seem, every year was a friend.

RISSOLES.

MAKE a pastry of one cup flour (white), one teaspoon shortening, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder. Mix to moisten inch thick. Cut in rounds. Put a little dried beef on one side, lap other side over, pinch edges together and fry in hot lard until light brown. Can use veal loaf, pork clipped fine or any kind of meat. Use for lunch and only takes from five to 10 minutes to make. The amount of pastry mentioned above makes six to eight.

FAMOUS WOMEN

LOUISE BATTISTATI.

LOUISE BATTISTATI was a native of Stradella, Sardinia. Later, removing to Milan, she displayed remarkable courage during the five days' revolution in 1848. On Sunday, March 10, of that year she disarmed a cavalry soldier, although the latter was heavily armed. Taking his weapons, she placed herself at the head of the Pappietti Bridge and continued fighting against the enemy for three days, in command of a valiant body of young men. She defended the asylum, which contained 500 persons, mostly widows and children who had taken refuge therein during the siege. After the insurrection she continued on active duty with the civic guard and was an honored member of the soldiery until her death.

Mrs. Magnus Johnson, wife of the United States Senator from Minnesota, is essentially a home woman, not caring for travel, cannot play golf or bridge, and prefers farm ways to city customs.

CANDY MADE AT HOME

By Hannah Wing

A Recognized Authority on Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

If you can make good fondant you can make most of the home-made candies.

Fondant is best made several weeks before it is to be used. It ripens and mellow with standing. Sugar, like salt, will take moisture from the atmosphere. For an amateur at the art, a clear bright day adds to the likelihood of success.

A thermometer is an aid, provided it is accurate and has been adjusted to altitude.

If you are used to the old-fashioned tests these generally recognized temperatures may help:

The "soft ball" stage corresponds to 233 degrees Fahrenheit and is used for fondant, fudge and other soft candies.

The "hard ball" stage corresponds to 245 degrees Fahrenheit and is used for taffy.

The "crack" stage corresponds to 290 degrees Fahrenheit and is used for peanut brittle, popcorn balls and other brittle candies.

In making plain fondant remember: 1—To stir the ingredients until the sugar is dissolved.

2—Cover the saucepan until the syrup boils. 3—Wash down the sides of the kettle with a soft

swab dipped in cold water to remove crystals as fast as they form.

4—Cook slowly until the soft ball stage. 5—Wash down sides of pan and pour syrup slowly on platter or slab moistened with cold water.

6—Let stand without disturbing until cool around edges. 7—Work with spatula or broad-edged knife by lifting from the edge toward the center until fondant is white. 8—Knead with the hands until smooth and soft. Place in earthen dish until desired for use.

The correct proportions for fondant are two cupsful of sugar, 1-3 cupful of water and 1/2 teaspoonful of cream of tartar.

From fondant you can make bon bons, creams, mints, patties, wafers, and you can color and flavor these as you choose. You can use nuts or fruits for filling the bon bons or you can use fondant for filling dates, figs or other fruits.

You can make coffee fondant by using cloth-strained coffee instead of water.

You can make maple fondant by adding 1/2 cupful of maple syrup to the plain fondant recipe.

If by any misfortune your fondant crystallizes and becomes granular you may be able to redeem it by adding half the original amount of water and reworking.

Spanish Vermicelli.

Break up a half pound package of vermicelli and fry it a delicate brown in hot lard, add a finely minced onion, a thinly sliced bud of garlic and a large cupful of tomato sauce. Cook until the onions and the vermicelli are done, then strain, saving the sauce. Butter a baking dish and put in alternate layers of the vermicelli and grated cheese, and sprinkle the top with a few dry crumbs. Dot with butter, then pour over all the sauce and bake a delicate brown.

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

By HELEN ROWLAND

MY DAUGHTER, as a bright star in a murky sky, as a perfect blonde in a brunette chorus, so shineth a good husband in a world of "flivers."

His price is above radium, yet his name is NOT glorified in the newspapers; and he goeth to his grave an Unsung Hero.

He ariseth with the alarm clock and returneth from the office at the appointed moment; and the telephoned EXCUSE is not in his mouth.

He handeth over his weekly pay check without murmur and asketh only for carfare therefrom.

He admireth his wife's hats and extollet her tastes, and his compliments are not saved for OTHER women.

He pusheth the baby carriage with his own hands—and permitteth his wife to drive the car.

He accepteth whatsoever is set before him and complaineth not, but PRAISETH his wife's cooking to her face.

He laboreth hard at the office all day, and at the end thereof is too weary to stay to be beautified by the blonde manicurist or to linger at the camouflaged corner cafe.

When the friend and the stranger invite him to the feast, he saith always, "I will ask the Wife."

He keepeth his moneys, his religion and his social ambitions in his wife's name and permitteth her to choose his friends and his cravats.

He asketh only for the right to his OWN safety razor and his own politics.

He contenteth himself with cheap cigars and a pipe, that his wife may wear orchids; and weareth flannellette pajamas that she may be clad in all silk.

His wife is known in her clubs for the glory of her raiment and is envied among women.

He is a martyr to matrimony and a monument to devotion. Yet no statue hath been raised in his honor; though his name is LEGION and his numbers are as the flowers of the field.

For only the short-weights and the wicked husbands are immortalized in the news columns and in history.

Verily, verily, the best wives may be made in France and the world's greatest lovers in Italy.

But the best husband is the AMERICAN MODEL 1924! And she that findeth one of these findeth a GOOD THING! SELAH!

Children's Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess

A Good-Natured Relative.

A pleasant word may pave the way for friendship that will always stay.

—Old Mother Nature.

IT was a long time before Danny Meadow Mouse dared to creep out from under the great pile of brush where he had escaped from Yowler the Bob Cat.

Then he made straight for home, and he didn't stop until he got there. He had been gone so long that Nanny Meadow Mouse had been badly worried.

"Aren't you ashamed of yourself to leave me here alone to worry for so long?" she demanded sharply as Danny entered the doorway under the stump.

"Don't be cross, Nanny," Danny begged. "Don't be cross, I didn't stay away because I wanted to, but because I had to. I've had the most terrible time. I never was more frightened in my life, and I'm sore from my nose to my tail."

Then Danny told Nanny all about his adventure with Gray Fox and Yowler the Bob Cat, and how he had been knocked about in the old rusty tomato can. "My, but it is good to be home again!" he added at the end of his story.

"Then I hope you'll have sense enough to stay home and not go wandering about, taking such awful chances," replied Nanny. "If you had come home with me all this wouldn't have happened."

Danny knew that this was true, so he wisely said nothing. For several days thereafter he was content to go no further than was necessary in order to get food enough. They saw no more of Gray Fox or Yowler the Bob Cat.

In fact, they saw no one to be afraid of. Bob White came around every day and Whitenose the Fox Squirrel paid them a visit now and then. They began to feel quite contented and happy. They saw nothing more of their unpleasant relative, Little Robber the Cotton Rat, and they had no desire to see more of him.

They had about decided that they had no other relatives down there in the Sunny South when one moonlight night, when they had ventured a little further than usual from home, they unexpectedly came face to face with a stranger who, at first glance, they knew must be a relative. That he was a member of the Rat family they had no doubt whatever.

He was considerably bigger than Little Robber the Cotton Rat, and quite naturally Danny and Nanny were afraid of him. They turned to run. "Don't do that," squeaked the stranger. "I won't hurt you. It seems to me I've never seen you before. You must be cousins of mine, so let's get acquainted."

His voice was squeaky, but he spoke so pleasantly that Danny and Nanny stopped. He was sitting full in the moonlight, so that they could get a very good look at him. The very first thing they noticed was that he had big, soft, dark eyes. There was nothing ugly or mean about those eyes, as there is about the eyes of most members of the Rat family. They were gentle eyes, and at once Danny and Nanny lost all their fear.
